Corporate Access Data Portal

Service Overview

We host over 20,000 rows of voyages in our database that offer granular details of crude oil and gas condensate exports from over a dozen countries that make the news headlines. In terms of countries under oil sanctions, we offer detailed coverage of both Iran and Venezuela.

Data Granularity

The user web interface features various data points such as the identified vessel's name and IMO number along with port and country of origin, destination port and country, estimated barrel count and a set of GPS coordinates (if available) identified entirely by satellite imagery.

Straightforward Data Analysis

The web interface presents some key data, however you will find additional columns such as vessel draft depth, our observational notes and more in a downloadable CSV file format. You will also find API as an option for clients wishing to download the data automatically whenever there's a new update without the need to access the web interface.

Trusted Data Sources

In addition to the data which is being collected over AIS, a large percentage of our tracking is based on daily forensic studies of satellite imagery, contracted/volunteered shoreside photography and documentation provided to us by official sources which we then work on verifying.
